Department of World Languages and Literatures

Chair: Dr. Julian Arribas

The Department of World Languages and Literatures offers a multifaceted language program that will meet the diverse global challenges facing students of the 21st century. The department offers programs of study leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts in World Languages with concentrations in French, Spanish, Japanese, and Applied Professional Spanish. The department offers minor programs in Chinese, French, German, Japanese, Spanish, and English for Business, as well as a Certificate of Spanish for Specific Purposes. There are also opportunities for students to take courses in Arabic, Italian, Portuguese, and courses about world cultures and literatures in English. Additional courses in world languages may be taken through the Birmingham Area Consortium for Higher Education (BACHE). Promoting a comprehensive view of world cultures, languages and literatures enhances the students’ ability to compete in the job market and/or pursue graduate or professional studies.

Our programs are rooted in diversity within and across cultures, and foster the international exchange of knowledge and information between humanities scholars, teachers and other professionals. Our instructional methods are aligned with national standards. The world language experience at UAB includes classroom learning, scholarship and research, experiential learning, and extracurricular opportunities.

The UAB Department of World Languages and Literatures offers traditional language, culture, civilization, linguistics and literature classes and also enrolls students in such fields as literature in translation, film and cultural studies, foreign media and society, US Latino topics, applied linguistics and languages for the professions.

The department also offers an Honors Track Program and internships in World Languages to students in the Applied Professional Spanish concentration and Spanish for Specific Purposes, and for qualified majors with Departmental approval. Furthermore, we promote and sponsor opportunities for study abroad in conjunction with UAB Education Abroad programs. UAB Distinguished Professor Emeritus of French, William C. Carter has built one of the world's largest collections of books by and about French author Marcel Proust. The collection is housed on campus in Mervyn H. Sterne Library and includes original letters and other documents.

For more information about our programs, online placement exams, internships, events and sponsored study abroad opportunities, visit the Department of World Languages and Literatures web site at http://www.uab.edu/cas/languages/.

Language Placement

To assure that students taking language courses are properly placed, all students must take a placement exam in the language before enrolling in classes. Students enrolling in Arabic, Chinese, Italian, Japanese, and Portuguese will work directly with designated world language faculty members to ensure proper placement. Placement exams in French, Spanish, and German are available online at the Department of World Languages and Literatures web site: https://www.uab.edu/cas/languages/student-resources/placement-tests. The level at which native/heritage language speakers may begin formal language study will be determined by the appropriate foreign language advisor after the student has taken the online placement exam. Exceptional native/heritage language students may apply for Credit by Examination (CBE). The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) is available in French, German, and Spanish.

Major

The Department of World Languages and Literatures offers programs of study leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts in World Languages with concentrations in Japanese, French, Spanish, and Applied Professional Spanish. Students who major or minor in world languages are encouraged to consult the department web page to identify the appropriate departmental advisor to assist in formulating an individual program of study.

The World Language major starts at the 200 level.

Concentration in Japanese

The Japanese concentration/track at UAB offers an articulated approach to the study of the Japanese language and the culture, civilization and literature of the Japanese-speaking world. Literacy skills and understanding (e.g., listening, reading, writing, speaking) are developed throughout the course of study, as is the nurturing of critical and analytical skills. Majors will leave the program with the ability to engage in critical and cross-cultural analysis. Students have the opportunity to do in-depth work in special topics seminars (e.g., Advanced language structure, Japanese culture and civilization, Contemporary Japan, Japanese Business, Film, Literature, Translation, and Japanese current issues.) Typically, Japanese concentration majors have more than one major or a complement minor to facilitate the applied aspect of language study (e.g., art anime, business, digital forensics, education, international studies, and pre-health and public health). Students graduating from UAB with a concentration in Japanese may go on to graduate or professional schools and/or employment in such fields as business, education, engineering, entertainment, industry, international relations, medicine, and public health.

The Japanese concentration provides opportunities for community outreach activities (e.g., internships, service learning) in Alabama, and has diverse study abroad opportunities from which to choose. We work very closely with students to personalize their studying experience. We also help them to find ways to enhance their language and culture skills through unique experiences abroad (e.g., Fulbright, teaching in Japan, and teaching exchanges).

The Department recommends students to enroll in more than one language to learn about varied linguistic structures and receive a broader cross-cultural perspective.

Concentration in French

The French concentration/track at UAB offers an articulated approach to the study of the French language and the culture, civilization and literature of the French-speaking world. Literacy skills and understanding (e.g., reading, writing, speaking) are developed throughout the course of study, as is the nurturing of critical and analytical skills. Majors will leave the program with the ability to engage in critical and cross-cultural analysis. Students have the opportunity to do in-depth work in special topics seminars (e.g., Advanced Grammar, French Civilization, Contemporary France, French Film, Environment in the French-Speaking World, Francophone literature and current issues.) Typically, French concentration majors have more than one major or a complement of minors to facilitate the applied aspect of language study (e.g., pre-health, international studies, public health, digital forensics, education, art, anthropology, communication studies, business, criminal justice). Students graduating from UAB with a concentration in French have gone on to graduate or professional school and/or employment in such fields as business, education, government, industry, international relations, law, public health, medicine, hotel and restaurant management, and publishing.

The French concentration has opportunities for community outreach activities (e.g., internships, service learning) in Alabama, and has diverse study abroad opportunities from which to choose. We work very closely with students to personalize their studying experience. We also help them to find ways to enhance their language and culture skills through unique experiences abroad (e.g., application for French government youth grants and internships, teaching exchanges).

The Department recommends students to enroll in more than one language to learn about varied linguistic structures and receive a broader cross-cultural perspective.

Concentration in Spanish
The Spanish concentration/track at UAB offers an articulated approach to the study of the Spanish language and the culture, civilization and literature of the Spanish-speaking world. Literacy skills and understanding (e.g., listening, reading, writing, speaking) are developed throughout the course of study, as well as the nurturing of critical and analytical skills. Our Spanish curriculum emphasizes the gradual development of the three principal Modes of Communication: Interpretive, Interpersonal, and Presentational. Majors will leave the program with the ability to engage in critical and cross-cultural analysis. Students have the opportunity to do in-depth work in special topics seminars like Afro-Hispanic writers, Hispanic and Latino topics, peninsular film, and applied linguistics, and sociolinguistics. Typically, Spanish concentration majors have more than one major or a complement of minors to facilitate the applied aspect of language study (e.g., criminal justice and digital forensics, neuroscience, pre-health, nursing, education, communication studies, business, and international studies). Students graduating from UAB with a concentration in Spanish have gone on to graduate or professional school and/or employment in such fields as business, education, government, industry, international relations, law, medicine, publishing, translation, and interpretation.

The Spanish concentration major has diverse study abroad opportunities from which to choose.

The department recommends students to enroll in more than one language to learn about varied linguistic structures and receive a broader cross-cultural perspective.

Concentration in Applied Professional Spanish (APSP)
The concentration/track in Applied Professional Spanish at UAB is a program intended to prepare students to develop the necessary communicative skills and cultural knowledge to serve the needs of the U.S. Spanish-speaking community in professional settings (such as health care, business and management, social work, criminology, education, translation, and interpretation) and better prepare students for a career with an international scope. This carefully-designed, progressive coursework is a combination of professionally-focused Spanish courses, advanced Spanish linguistics and phonology courses, contemporary Hispanic culture courses, and practical experience (community service learning and internship). Our Spanish curriculum emphasizes the gradual development of the three principal Modes of Communication: Interpretive, Interpersonal, and Presentational.

While maintaining a firm Humanities foundation within the tradition of the Liberal Arts, the overarching goal of the APS program is to enhance students’ professional preparation for a global job market as well as for domestic positions that require proficiency in Spanish and understanding of U.S. Hispanic cultures. Courses are offered in various formats (seated, online, hybrid) and schedules (morning, afternoon, and evening) to accommodate both regular and returning students with a full-time job.

This program is especially adaptable as a double major.

Minor
Twelve semester hours at the 200 level or above are required for the minor in Chinese, French, German, Japanese, Spanish, or Business Spanish. No course in which a grade below C has been earned may be counted toward the minor requirement. The Department of World Languages and Literatures strongly recommends that more than half of student course work for the minor be completed on the UAB campus. Students that transfer courses from non-UAB programs into the UAB minor programs will be examined for placement and proficiency level. At least 6 hrs. of the credits applied toward the minor must be taken at UAB. Exceptions to this rule can be granted with the permission of the Chair.

World Languages Media Services
The computer-based World Languages Media Services (WLMS) at UAB enables students, faculty and community users to access and utilize world languages and cultures in a digital environment in order to provide multi-dimensional learning and research opportunities. The WLMS plays an integral role in the activities and services of the UAB Department of World Languages and Literatures and also serves as a support center for the University. The WLMS enables the UAB Department of World Languages and Literatures to respond to the demand for additional language resources, the requirements for a wider range of tasks being performed in the languages, a greater number of language learners of different types and a broader array of instructional modes.

For more information about WLMS, online placement exams and internships, visit the Department of World Languages and Literatures website: http://www.uab.edu/cas/languages/.

Foreign Language Education
The Department of World Languages and Literatures regularly offers graduate language classes as content courses in French and Spanish for graduate degrees in foreign language education. Students interested in seeking one of the graduate degrees in foreign language education should contact the UAB Department of Curriculum and Instruction (School of Education).

Spanish for Specific Purposes

The Department of World Languages and Literatures offers a Spanish for Specific Purposes (SSP) Certificate. The certificate is built upon the existing Spanish program and course offerings with modifications and additions. The courses are designed for traditional as well as non-traditional candidates. The objective of this certificate is not only to fulfill UAB degree candidates’ academic and future needs, but also to reach out to local professionals. The courses are content-, vocabulary-, and culture-based. Students learn the vocabulary, language and cultural background that they will use in their professional field through extensive practice in class and beyond the classroom as well. WLL 115. Experiencing Japanese Culture in Birmingham. 3 Hours.
This service-learning course will offer students a chance to discover and experience Japanese culture in Birmingham. Although the size of the Japanese community in southern US states is relatively small compared to other parts of the country, Birmingham offers a surprisingly rich context for learning Japanese culture, including a Japanese garden, tea ceremonies, calligraphy, martial arts, architecture, cuisine, festivals, traditional kimono dress, and so forth. Taking this course will enhance students’ awareness and appreciation of an Asian culture and contribute to greater diversity, equity, and inclusion among students as they create a discrimination-free society and become global citizens. This course meets Blazer Core Curriculum City as a Classroom and Service Learning requirements and Global/Multicultural and High Impact Practices flags.

WLL 118. City as Main Character. 3 Hours.
This course considers the role of the city in cinema as a method for identifying key themes within the city of Birmingham, Alabama. Films with a focus on the city offer us insights into the challenges brought with urban living, such as, but not limited to racial relations, bilingualism, immigration, class difference, labor, physical and mental health, crime and the city’s relationship to rural communities. Paired along with articles, short films, websites and other media about the history and current state of Birmingham, as well as field trips to destinations within the city, we will watch films about Mexico City, Berlin, Seoul, Tokyo and Cairo among others. Along the way, students will learn how to identify and analyze the city through a cinematic lens. All films are available with English subtitles. All other readings are in English or English translation. This course has no prerequisites. This course falls under the rubric of “City as Classroom” in the Blazer Core and has the Global/Multicultural Perspectives and Undergraduate Research flags.

WLL 120. World Cultures. 3 Hours.
Exploration of the customs, traditions, languages, ancestry, religions, values, and institutions of varied western and non-western nations through the use of humanities disciplines. Strong emphasis on the epistemology, production, and reception of culture, within and beyond the borders of a particular nation-state. Ethics and Civic Responsibility are significant components of this course. This course meets Blazer Core Humans and their Societies with Flags in Global Multicultural Perspectives and High Impact Practices/Service Learning, Community-Based Learning.

WLL 121. Songs of Social Change through World Cultures. 3 Hours.
This course introduces students to some of the most significant cultural topics across the languages and civilizations represented in the DWLL through a cultural medium, such as music. The course, team-taught by selected faculty of the different languages, will explore and reflect on ideas and attitudes, customs and traditions, identities and values of diverse western and non-western civilizations. Offered in English, it does not require previous knowledge of other world languages.

WLL 125. Eating in Birmingham: From Food Banks to Fine Dining. 3 Hours.
This course explores the connection between cuisine and culture at different levels in the restaurant and food scene in Birmingham, AL. Students will analyze the interconnectedness of multicultural influence, economy, history, and culture through the study of iconic Birmingham foods and culinary groups. In this course, students will explore fine dining, food trucks, and locally owned restaurants through kitchen visits and collaboration, chef and cook interviews, and critical reflection on relevant texts and multimedia materials. Students will examine the various factors that influence food availability, tradition, and representation in the local community through a social justice lens and conclude the course with a collaborative research project contributing to the students’ own and local community’s understanding of its relationship with food in the past, present, and future. This course meets Blazer Core Curriculum City as a Classroom with a flag in Justice and Undergraduate Research.
WLL 130. My Global Birmingham. 3 Hours.
This experiential learning course is an overview of Birmingham's connections with countries other than the United States, taught by a specialist in a specific global region, its languages, and its cultures. Precursors to Birmingham's 1871 foundation include previous cities in Alabama that have determined the city's ever-global culture. Topics may include but are not limited to nonviolence and job opportunities in a global context. Students will demonstrate understanding of Birmingham's ties to other nations and regions. They will complete an experiential learning project to interact in a hands-on manner with the Birmingham community. This course meets Blazer Core Curriculum City as a Classroom with flags in Global and Multicultural Perspectives and Service Learning, Community Based Learning.

WLL 132. Multicultural City: Heritage through Festivals. 3 Hours.
This course explores the cultural impact of festivals around Birmingham. Students will learn about the history and evolution of festivals, as well as their role in shaping cultural identity and community. The course will also examine a variety of elements that reflect the culture and traditions of the group or community that is hosting festivals, including food and drink, music and dance, arts and crafts, religion and spirituality, clothing and costumes, and cultural education. Through a combination of lectures, discussions, and service-learning projects at local festivals and cultural centers, students will gain a deeper understanding of the significance of festivals in contemporary society and apply their knowledge and skills in a real-world setting while also making a positive impact in the community. This course meets Blazer Core Curriculum City as a Classroom with flags in Global and Multicultural Perspectives and Service Learning, Community Based Learning.

WLL 140. Worlds of Anime and Manga. 3 Hours.
This course explores the themes, history, and workings of Japanese animation, or anime, and Japanese comic books, or manga, through various exciting—albeit by no means exhaustive—examples. By reading, viewing, and discussing a series of manga and anime films/series that represent various time periods, genres, and styles, students will develop a critical appreciation for the meanings and sociocultural communications of manga and anime and their legacy today both in Japan and on the global stage. The main questions of this course are: what is anime and manga? How do they function as a medium? And how can we understand their technical and narrative elements in relation to history, environment, culture, and society? No prior Japanese language knowledge is required for this course. This course meets Blazer Core Curriculum Creative Arts with flags in Global/Multicultural and Sustainability.

WLL 145. Afrodocs: Afro-Iberian and Caribbean History through Film. 3 Hours.
Most of the African diaspora lives in Latin America and the Caribbean. Portugal was the first to enslave based on race, and Spain was the last European power to abolish enslavement. For centuries, Afro-Latin Americans have struggled for representation and citizenship in their respective nations. This course shows how documentary film has been used to provide much-needed representation of Afro-Latin Americans and their diasporas in the United States. African America and the Iberian Peninsula are also part of this history. The UNESCO Conference against Racism coined the term “Afrodescendant” and its use to link Black peoples in the Americas and Europe, so films in this course are primarily from the new millennium. Students will learn to establish connections between films, primarily documentaries, depicting key elements of the diaspora as they relate to history and its continuation in the present: 1. Enslavement. 2. The linked phenomena of national independence and the abolition and slavery. 3. Afrodescendant peoples and Marxist revolutions. 4. Afrodescendant immigrants. 5. Racism and policing. 6. Art forms and syncretic religions. Students will interrogate how documentaries inform our understanding of film, history, and the present. This course meets the Blazer Core Curriculum History and Meaning requirement and Justice flag.

WLL 160. Freshman Year Experience: World Languages. 1 Hour.
The objective of this course is to introduce incoming freshmen to an education in world languages and world cultures in context of the university. It is meant to help prepare students for a successful collegiate career in the study of world languages. This course meets Blazer Core Curriculum Local Beginnings with flags in Freshman Year Experience and Wellness/Well-being.

WLL 170. Lost in Translation: Navigating College and Beyond. 3 Hours.
This course aims to equip learners with the necessary skills and knowledge to succeed in today’s fast-paced and constantly evolving global job market. The course covers a wide range of topics including intercultural communication, study skills, teamwork and collaboration, critical thinking and problem-solving skills as well as effective networking and leadership. Through interactive lectures, discussions and hands-on activities students will learn how to effectively navigate diverse communities, overcome challenges and be successful not only in college but in life.

WLL 179. Films on Latin American Leaders. 3 Hours.
What kind of leader do you want to be? What does a just leader do? Understanding Latin American culture can help students answer these questions. Realistic films depict leaders from a variety of countries and backgrounds in this film course. Conversation and creative activities will help students be more thoughtful, culturally competent leaders in their future career. The final project will focus on ideas for Hispanic and Latinx Heritage Month in their future workplace.

WLL 190. Study Abroad: World Languages. 1-8 Hour.
Approved novice level study abroad program for a world language not regularly offered at UAB, which takes place in a foreign country. Permission of the Department Chair and the Study Abroad Director.

WLL 199. Directed Readings: World Languages. 3 Hours.
This is an individualized course of directed readings and activities for novice World Language students in a language that is not offered regularly at UAB. The course may be offered in the case of a visiting professor in a language that is beyond the scope of regular instructional languages. Course design is determined by the instructor and student and will be tailored to the needs of the student. The goal of the course is to increase general literacy and knowledge of world languages.
WLL 220. World Literatures in English Translation. 3 Hours.
Introduction to cross-cultural theory of genre and human experience with a particular emphasis on the historical and cultural context in which literary traditions are shaped, interpreted and reinvented. WLL 220 invites the students to think critically about the formation of literary canons and the ethics of translating cultural difference/sameness. Ethics and Civic Responsibility are significant components of this course. This course meets Blazer Core Creative Arts with Flags in Post-Freshman Writing & Global Multicultural Perspectives.

WLL 230. The International Biopic. 3 Hours.
This course considers the cinematic genre of the biographical film or “biopic” as it is more commonly known, in its various contexts. We will: 1. evaluate the degree to which these films are “historically accurate” and whether historical accuracy is a fair metric by which to assess this genre; 2. additionally appraise the degree to which these biopics bolster national identity with the films’ subjects and their historical moments’ accomplishments; and 3. further gauge their reception on the international stage and consider the global impact of the films’ subjects. These films are in several languages other than English and will be made available with English subtitles. All other readings are in English or English translation. This course meets Blazer Core Curriculum History and Meaning with flags in Post Freshman Writing and Global & Multicultural Perspectives.

WLL 290. Education Abroad: World Languages. 1-12 Hour.
Approved novice level study abroad program for a world language not regularly offered at UAB, which takes place in a foreign country. Permission of the Department Chair and the Study Abroad Director.

WLL 295. Study Abroad and the City. 3 Hours.
This course allows students to explore the city in which study abroad takes place as a physical and cultural entity and compare it to Birmingham and their hometowns. Participants learn aspects of the structure of the city such as the downtown, its significance and components: businesses, markets, restaurants, museums, churches and places of worship, services, means of transportation, sidewalks and bicycle lanes, roads and traffic, parking, and parks and public spaces. The course also examines a variety of elements that reflect the cultures and traditions of the community or communities in the city, such as their languages and linguistic landscapes, culinary traditions and restaurants, festivals, visual and performing arts, religion and spirituality, as well as their cultural identity and its relationship with migration. Through a combination of lectures, discussions, readings, and on-site projects, students will gain a deeper understanding of Birmingham (and beyond) as it compares to their study abroad city, and they will apply their knowledge and exploration by making inferences to other cities and their communities. This course satisfies the City as Classroom requirement of the Blazer Core. This course must be taken in conjunction with other courses in a UAB Education Abroad program.

WLL 299. Directed Readings: World Languages. 3 Hours.
This is an individualized course of directed readings and activities for intermediate World Language students in a world language that is not offered regularly at UAB. Course design is determined by the instructor and student and will be tailored to the needs of the student. The goal of the course is to increase general literacy and knowledge of world languages. Permission of Department Chair required.

WLL 303. History of International Film. 3 Hours.
From the first silent films to the 21st century: comparison and contrast of major international films and filmmakers.
